Marion Man Drowned In Accident at Indian Lake

Eugene Ell, 38, of 341 Davis street, an electric welder at the Marion Steam Shovel Co. plant was drowned when he fell from a boat into deep water off Karpet's landing on the north side of Indian lake Monday night. He and his family had come to the lake Friday to spend the week-end and the holiday at a cottage there.

According to Win Kinnan, lake foreman of the conservation office at Russells Point, Mr. Ell and his wife, Reba, had gone out from the landing in a boat equipped with an outboard motor, their intention being to fish in deep water off the landing. The motor went dead and Mr. Ell was attempting to start it again when he lost his balance and fell overboard. Mrs. Ell was sitting in the front of the boat when she heard a splash and saw that her husband had fallen. His fall caused enough disturbance in the water to push the boat away from him.

Mr. Ell remained above water for a while and Mrs. Ell attempted to move the boat back to the spot. However, her husband went down while she was looking on.

The lake patrol under the supervision of Capt. Anthony Pfarr of Marysville is using eight boats and 10 men equipped with two large reels and grappling hooks in a search for the body. The search has been carried on since Monday night.

Difficulty in identifying the exact spot where Mr. Ell disappeared has slowed operations, it was reported.

The Ell's two children, Nancy, 14, and Shirley, 11, were at the lake with their parents, but remained on shore when their parents went out in the boat.

FACTORY TOPS E BOND GOAL

Quota of $46,000 Reached and Passed by Employes of Huber Co.

Fifth War Loan sales for Saturday and Monday in the long holiday vacation period totaled $143,104.75, and brought the total sales to date to $4,707,756, reports show. Factory payroll purchases boosted the total and one industrial concern, the Huber Manufacturing Co. reached its quota of $46,000, with a nice start on "over the top purchases" which will continue the remainder of the month.

When the quota was reached late Monday afternoon the Huber company's blackout siren blew for the 46th time to let the officials and employes know that another thousand dollars in bonds had been sold and the company's goal had been reached. Since the drive started it has been the practice of those in charge of the war bond sale to sound the siren each time the thousand-dollar mark was reached. There will be no let-up in the drive and the sale will be continued on the payroll deduction plan until the windup of the county campaign, Robert O'Connell, chairman, said today.

Purchases over the holiday period also included one in the amount of $29,000 made by the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad Co. which was credited to the Marion County campaign.

E bond sales for the two days amounted to $32,593.75, with 842 persons sharing in the purchases, and brought the total to $536,281.50. The two-day overall sale amounted to $143,104.75 making a grand total of $4,707,756.00, which is $1,342,756 beyond the $3,365,000 overall quota.

Serving with Mr. O'Connell on the Huber Co. bond drive committee are A. J. Tower, F. L. Hoover, Merle Chase, Tom Grice, Earl Sayre, Myron Gibson, Robert Gibson, Joe Seiter, Lawrence Shaffer, Irwin Crall, Thad Kuenzli, Albert Hood, Lowell Gompf, William Armbruster Sr., Mrs. Ruth Lantz, Fred Wilson, J. POLICE INTENSIFY HUNT FOR FUGITIVES

Pair Sought After Robbery, Beating and Abduction.

By The Associated Press

LIMA, O., July 5—Police intensified their search today for two fugitives from the Lima state hospital for the criminally insane after an elderly woman was beaten unconscious, a couple was bound and robbed and their son was abducted.

Deputy Sheriff John Carder said the fugitives, Louis Marune, 26, of Youngstown and Samuel Bonecutter, 18, of Columbus, were identified by the abduction victim, Albert Backus, 32, from photographs Carder said investigation showed:

Marune, a Puerto Rican convicted of first degree murder, and Bonecutter, convicted of armed robbery, apparently hid in a woods on the farm of Mrs. Minnie Cramer, 10 miles west of here after escaping with two others from the hospital last Thursday night.

Marune and Bonecutter entered Mrs. Cramer's home Mon-

LA HAYE RAIL STATION SEIZED BY U. S. TROOPS

Nazis Thrown from 17 Villages in Drive on French Town.

By The Associated Press

WITH U. S. FORCES, July 5—American troops entered La Haye Du Puits today, capturing its railway station.

The railway station, about 300 yards from the heart of town, was seized a few minutes after 9 a. m. after a force sweeping on the town from the northwest beat off an infantry counter-attack supported by tanks. The Germans threw in Mark IV and Tiger tanks, the first time Tiger tanks have been used on this American sector.

The American First army battled the Germans out of 17 villages and hamlets in its explosive assault down the Cherbourg peninsula during the past 24 hours.

Canadians in Battle

On the eastern extreme of the bridgehead port Canadians fought hand-to-hand today with stubbornly resisting Germans for Carpiquet airfield three miles from Caen, while the British to the south beat off new German tank attacks with heavy enemy losses.

Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley's tireless American doughboys, attacking in a jagged 20-mile arc from Carentan to the west coast of the Cherbourg peninsula, advanced from one half mile to 2½ miles in swamp, canal-creased country.

American columns converging on La Haye Du Puits, an important six-road junction, were within two miles of the town on the west, three miles on the north, a mile on the northeast and three miles on the east. Capture of the town appeared imminent.

Progress was far from easy. The Germans resisted heavily in all sectors, and a particularly violent engagement was going on one half mile south of the newly-captured St. Jores, east of La Haye.

The long-quiet Carentan sector erupted into bloody fighting when the Americans launched an attack down the Carentan-Periers road. The doughboys advanced half a mile in an attack starting at noon yesterday.

Artillery Covers Advance

Each foot of the advance had to be covered with artillery. Swamps and canal channelized the fighting to the narrow area along the road.

On the Carentan-Tilly-Sur-Seulles sector of the front there was only patrol activity.

East of Gavrus at the butt of the Odon river bridgehead the Germans launched a night counter-attack, but it was smashed by Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery's big gun batteries. Another similar attack to the south three hours later also was smashed.

There was an upsurge in naval activity along the coast. After some days of inactivity German E-boats appeared again and tried to attack the eastern flank of the convoy route off Le Havre, but were beaten off in darkness.

Slightly improved weather allowed the allies to put up over 3,500 planes in support of the bridgehead yesterday and at least 23 German planes were shot down.

U. S. Violent Death Reaches 439 Over July 4th Holiday

By The Associated Press

America celebrated a comparatively safe Fouth of July with 439 persons meeting death in accidents throughout the country over the long holiday weekend, less than half the toll expected by the National Council of Safety.

But, the fatality record was nearly 150 more than last year when 298 violent deaths were reported over the three-day weekend.

The safety council had estimated 1,000 deaths from traffic accidents, drownings and miscellaneous causes.

Traffic fatalities again headed the death list, 170 reported in 38 states and the District of Columbia. Last year, 127 persons were killed in highway accidents while in 1941, before travel restrictions, there were 500.

Drownings claimed 140 lives and 129 persons died from miscellaneous causes. There were no fatalities from fireworks reported.

Ohio's death toll was 22. Ten died in traffic, seven drowned and five died in other kinds of accidents, including a shooting and a fall.

EIGHTH ARMY NEARS AREZZA

Troops Only 5 Miles from Important Communications Center in Italy.

By The Associated Press

ROME, July 5—Eighth army troops converging from the southwest and south, have driven within five miles of the important communications center of Arezzo on the road to Florence while American units on Italy's west coast have moved up to the outskirts of Rosignano, less than 13 miles airline from Livorno, allied headquarters announced today.

Both advances were recorded against stiff German resistance and the Nazis gave every indication they intended to battle to retain the valuable port of Livorno as long as possible.

Heavy guns situated on dominant hills opened fire on approaching infantry and tanks around Rosignano. At the same time heavy road movements westward were seen behind the enemy lines, indicating reserves were being moved into position.

Strongly supported by artillery, the Americans finally broke into the town in strength and reinforced their position yesterday, while north of the town tanks established road blocks against expected German counter-attacks.

By road the advanced troops were only 15 miles from Livorno but an official spokesman declared a slow advance could be expected.

In other sectors along the entire front the Germans were being rolled back steadily against the outer fringes of the so-called Gothic line believed to extend from the mountains south of Rimini westward toward the Pisa-Livorno area.

17 JAP VESSELS SUNK IN PACIFIC

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 5—Navy Secretary Forrestal reported today the sinking of 17 Japanese vessels, including a light cruiser and a destroyer, by American submarines operating in Pacific waters.

He disclosed the latest bag of American undersea craft at a news conference at which he reported that the submarines deserve "the lion's share of the credit for knocking the props from under Japan's conquest."

Forrestal said the rate of sinking of the Japanese merchant fleet would be accelerated "and has caught up with the Jap retreat."

Japan, he said, "is losing merchant ships faster than she can afford to" and continuation of the current trends "will leave her by the end of 1944 with a sizable and growing deficit."

The war against Japan, he said had moved at "a faster pace than we had hoped for."

$50,000 FIRE AT DELAWARE

Grain Elevator and Contents Destroyed; Spontaneous Combustion Blamed.

Special to The Star

DELAWARE, July 5—Damage estimated at $40,000 was caused when the grain elevator of the Delaware Farmers exchange burned early this morning.

When Delaware firemen were called at 5:30 a. m., the building was already ablaze.

It is thought the fire was caused by spontaneous combustion in new wheat stored there. Firemen from Marion were called about one-half hour later, but when they arrived the building had already burned and Marion equipment was not put to use.

Between 8,000 and 10,000 bushels of new wheat, rye and corn were stored in the elevator. Destroyed along with the grain was a large amount of feed and grinding machinery set up in the building. A complete survey of damage has not been completed this morning.

The French leader is due here this week. According to the New York Herald Tribune, he will arrive Tuesday.

His program includes a luncheon at the White House and a press conference the next day.

De Gaulle also will appear at a French rally in New York before proceeding to Canada where he will spend two or three days before returning to Algiers in time for Bastille day celebrations July 14.

Eisenhower Flies Over France in Mustang Fighter Plane

By The Associated Press

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, July 5—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower returned to his headquarters today after celebrating the Fourth of July by flying with Maj. Gen. Elwood Quesada on an observation trip over the Normandy battle area.

Eisenhower flew in a Mustang over the combat area with Quesada, chief of the U. S. Ninth air force fighter command.

Eisenhower also made a trip by road which took him past an enemy pocket of resistance on the American sector of western Cherbourg peninsula.

On the aerial jaunt, the supreme commander and the young, intrepid Quesada led a flight which included no other planes.

It was believed to have been Eisenhower's first flight over the area, and the first in which two generals flew in a plane built for one person.

During his visit in France, Eisenhower conferred with Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, commanding all ground forces and Lt.-Gen. Omar N. Bradley, commander of the American First army.

Eisenhower spent five days on the bridgehead.

Col. George R. Bickell of Nutley, N. J., led a second element of the Mustang flight. All the pilots returned safely.

Cheerful and thrilled over the experience Eisenhower asked who was the leading ace of the group, and was told it was Capt. Don M. Beerbower, Hill City, Minn., with 18 planes to his credit.

"Get them all in the air, son?" Eisenhower asked.

Beerbower, who heads the Ninth air force in number of kills, said he got 16 in the air and two aground.

Eisenhower praised the performance of the Mustang group, recently awarded a citation for outstanding operations.

88 PLANES, 5 SHIPS BLASTED IN BONIN GROUP

Blow Struck July 3 and 4 Still in Progress; Foe Loses 3 Destroyers.

By The Associated Press

An American fleet spoiling for battle has stabbed into Japan's Bonin islands, 615 miles from Tokyo to destroy five ships, 88 planes and to deliver another compelling invitation for the Japanese navy to come out and fight.

The alarmist Tokyo radio today today said the Fourth of July carrier plane-warship attack still was going on.

All four of the Pacific war fronts flamed into action, but the thrust of Adm. Raymond Spruance's Fifth fleet task forces into the Bonins and adjacent Volcano islands was a slap in the face the Japanese admirals could hardly ignore.

Paratroop landing on Noemfoor island in Gen. MacArthur's domain, imminent finish of the Saipan invasion and important gains in Burma filled out the picture of heightening allied pressure on the enemy's buckling defenses. Only in China was the Japanese successfully on the offensive.

Nimitz Announces Attack ...

Adm. Chester Nimitz last night announced the Bonin-Volcano raids. On July 3 carrier planes blasted Iwo Jima in the Volcano group, destroying probably 79 planes against a loss of three.

The next day cruisers and destroyers moved in close to shell Iwo Jima's warehouses and harbor installations, Carrier planes firing rockets also hit Iwo Jima and flew northward to thump Haha Jima and destroy 25 more planes, against a loss of six.

These scores brought to 826 the number of enemy planes downed since the Saipan operations began June 10 and the toll of ships to 36. Three of the vessels knocked out July 4 were destroyers.

Tokyo declared without confirmation that a powerful U. S. task force still was prowling off Chichi Jima, main island of the Bonin group and that severe fighting continues. While Nimitz did not mention Chichi Jima, Tokyo said it was shelled yesterday by warships and that several hundred planes joined the attack.

Advance on Saipan

Tokyo also conceded steady American advances on Saipan. Nimitz said U. S. forces have conquered seven-eighths of the island, including the cities of Garapan and Tanapag with the latter's good harbor.

Thousands of Japanese soldiers and civilians were crowding into Saipan's northeast tip for a last desperate stand.

Paratroops dropped on Noemfoor to back up Sixth army troops driving toward their second airport on the island, which lies 800 miles from the Philippines. Parachute landing of troops has been rarely used in the Pacific.

Chungking said its troops captured a village 22 miles west of Tengchung, narrowing to 26 miles the gap between these forces and Gen. Stilwell's troops in Burma. The latter, Chungking casually mentioned, has a force at Sanon 31 miles east of Myitkyina. Sanon and the captured village, Chanhai, possibly indicate for the first time the route of the projected Ledo-Burma road. Stilwell is straining to get in operation.

The Chinese surrounded in Hengyang refused to yield the city, Chungking said, despite fierce assaults of infantry, artillery and poison gas.

Owosso's Recollections of Young Tom Dewey

Old Neighbors at Birthplace Say He Was a "Lone Wolf Leader," Plugger and Debater.

PATRIOT—Tom Dewey at ten wore an Uncle Sam suit to a Fourth of July festival.

HORN BLOWER—Dewey's musical ability was evidenced at an early age. As a high school junior, he put plenty of oomph into the E-flat bass horn for the band.

By JACK I. GREEN
Associated Press Writer

OWOSSO, Mich.—This prosperous little community of 15,000 takes on added stature as the birthplace of Thomas E. Dewey, the first son of Michigan to be a major party Presidential nominee in almost a century.

Owosso displays quiet pride in its seclusion—quiet, because its attention still is centered primarily on the war.

An Ambitious Youngster

Residents recall Tom Dewey, the third in line of politically-important citizens, as a "bright hard-working, thrifty, ambitious" youngster.

One of his high school teachers, Robert S Linton, now registrar of Michigan State college, says:

"Tom was a lone wolf and a leader at the same time. He did not go in for group activites much, but preferred those where he depended on himself. He was a singer, a debater, a student orator. When he played tennis, as he loved to do, he preferred singles. Early in life Tom showed clearly he had learned how to manage himself and his classmates respected him for his administrative abilities in student functions."

Knew Money's Value

Linton put his finger on one quality which all Owosso remembers.

"Tom," he said, "always worked and knew the value of a dollar."

Deweys boyhood business experience was varied and intense. At 11, he started a newspaper route and at 13 he took charge of a city-wide magazine agency, employing groups of other boys. Daily he distributed Owosso's share of the Detroit Daily News. During World War I he became a member of the high school boys' work reserve and labored one summer for $20 a month on the farm of Earl Putnam, near Owosso.

FARMER—He worked a summed in World War I to help his country.

ACTOR—Dewey played and sang in college musical, "Top O' the Morning."

Putnam recalls that Tom once explained his farm employment thus:

Learned To Farm

"My children or grandchildren some day will ask me what I did for my country in the World War. I was too young to go to war so I concluded the best way for me to help would be to produce food. Then, too, I wanted to get into condition to try out for the high school football team."

Dewey, then 16 and weighing about 135 pounds, never made the team, but he learned a lot from farming. Putnam says Dewey wrote that summer to his mother, "Milked a cow and got milk. Am learning."

Dewey never was late or absent during 12 years of school. He also had a local reputation as a debater. Following one contest, his high school annual recorded:

"...Mr. Dewey, the last speaker of the evening, settled the question by his eloquence. It is rumored that this time he talked faster than any other person ever heard in our auditorium."

It has been told how Dewey started out to be a great singer and turned to law only when he saw he could not reach the top rung by the musical scale. An accomplished musician, he was a singer, choir soloist and bass horn player in high school. Dewey played the third lead a character part, in one of the University of Michigan's famed union operas and toured the principal cities of the middle west in 1921, his sophomore year, in "Top O' the Morning," an Irish musical comedy.

Mrs. Sherman Welch, Dewey's cousin, recalled "the Dewey men always were interested in politics." And it always has been Republican politics. Dewey is supposed to have told a friend once, "My father had a horror of Tammany Hall."

Owosso sees in "Young Tom" many of the qualities of his father, George M. Dewey, who edited a country newspaper and was described as "well-dressed, straight-as-a-ramrod (he studied at West Point), proud-spirited, a man of personality and great rectitude.

Many residents believe his mother, still living in Owosso, gave him the training in thrift, determination and persistence which has carried him so far.

Herman H Dignan, secretary of state and a Dewey family friend, sums it thus: "Tom Dewey learned confidence in his own abilities and his own opinions and he wasn't swayed easily, even as a boy. He started to pay attention to what people said of him if he thought he were right. He always seemed to know what he was doing and what he had to do to get there."

Oliver Cromwell is believed to have been the first military leader to organize espionage.

PROSPECT OFFICER FLIES MERCY PLANE

Special to The Star

PROSPECT—A letter dated June 21 and headed simply "Italy" was received by Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Bricker of here from their son Lt. Stanley Bricker. He enclosed an article written by J. A. Burchard of Cleveland, that appeared in the Mediterranean edition of "The Stars and Stripes" of June 17.

At Nettuno airfield during the triumphant drive on Rome Burchard, interviewing some of the personnel of the medical air evacuation transport, chanced upon Lt. Stanley Bricker of Prospect and Lt. Sam Walling of Chicago, Ill., pilots of the fourth transport plane in the long line waiting for the arrival of ambulances. (During the heaviest fighting some of the planes daily made four trips—a fourteen hour day.)

To each plane are assigned one nurse, in this case Lt. Helen Huskins of Bay City, Michigan, and one enlisted man. Waiting in the shade of the plane's wings sat a crew of stretcher bearers. With the approach of the first ambulance they rose and without losing a second, unlatched doors and gently lifted burned and shot into the airship.

The article quoted Lt. Bricker as saying, "Almost all of them have been wounded within the last few hours and many need operations that can't be performed in the front lines. Nationality makes no difference. Germans receive the same treatment as anybody else."

On this particular day one of the wounded was a 10-year-old Italian girl who had been shot accidentally by a rifle. Her father, a small grief-stricken man, climbed into the plane and stood holding the child's hand protectingly. When the major from the hospital said he must get off, the little girl set up a protesting wail. Her father mutely gazed at his child and heroically stood his ground. Then Lt. Bricker spoke quickly, "The two together don't weigh as much as one G. I. We'll take 'em both."

As soon as the rest of its passengers had been carried aboard —Germans, Americans and British on this trip—"the fourth plane" took off on its errand of mercy.

Marion Man's Plane Battered by Shells, but He Lands Safely

Special to The Star

A NINTH AIR FORCE FIGHTER BOMBER BASE, Returning from a mission over France with both wings of his P-47 Thunderbolt shot up so badly that he had to land at 140 miles per hour to prevent stalling out, was the second time within nineteen weeks that 2nd Lt. Louis D. Hamilton III, of 334 East Center street, Marion, O., has safely landed badly crippled planes without a scratch. Less than three weeks ago he belly landed his Thunderbolt "Buckeye Blitz" at 160 miles an hour, skidding down the runway for more than 3,000 feet without nosing over.

With a new set of wings on his second plane, he has named it "Reincarnation" and is again participating regularly in fighter-bomber missions with Colonel Gilbert L. Meyers' group.

His belly landing of "Buckeye Blitz" was necessary when he came into land with half of the right stabilizer and all the right elevator missing and a hole in the right aileron, landing gear out of order and unable to bring the tail of his ship down or use his flaps. The plane was scrapped.

Flying a new plane on a locomotive strafing mission over France, Lt. Hamilton, with Captain Leon D. Meyers of Cincinnati, O., went after a military equipment train racing for the protection of a town. Overtaking the train he hit the locomotive squarely with his first burst of fire, then felt his plane shudder as he pulled up at 350 miles an hour. Flak guns on armored cars in the train had torn three feet off his left wing tip and a German 47 mm shell had entered the leading edge of his right wing, bursting inside to tear the rivets loose and disrupt the curve.

"I had to push the throttle up to maintain flying speed and struggled for control until I got it retrimmed. I was able to get 310 miles per hour out of it however, and it flew steady throughout the 200 miles home. Landing was a problem, because of the danger of stalling out. I got my gear down and came in hot and it took the runway perfectly," Lt. Hamilton related.

Captain Meyers escorted his fellow Ohioan home, ready to call for help should it become necessary for Lt. Hamilton to "ditch in the drink" while crossing the channel.

"The P-47s can really take it and come home," both agreed. "I wouldn't enjoy flying any other plane," Lt. Hamilton added.

* * *

Lt. Hamilton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Hamilton of 334 East Center street. He was a student at the University of Akron when he entered service five years ago. Last May he received his wings at Luke field, Ariz. He visited his parents here last Thanksgiving and left for overseas duty in December.

GALION HAS GALA JULY 4 PROGRAM

Special to The Star

GALION, July 5—Fair weather, blue skies and a cooling breeze, took thousands to Heise park Tuesday for the fourth annual celebration of the Fourth of July, sponsored by the Galion Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The war-time Fourth observance carried a patriotic theme throughout the day's program, the bond selling bringing events to a close after 10 p. m.

From the day's start-off luncheon at 11:30 a. m. at Hotel Talbott for purchasers of war bonds toward the $500,000, over and above Galion's quota for the fifth war loan drive, there was something doing every minute.

Led by the Galion police car and a platoon from Camp Millard, Bucyrus, drum corps and firing squads, a parade made its way from the city building to Heise park. Other participants included at least three floats by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, a float by the American Steel Abrasives company, bicyclists and motorcyclists, horse-back riders, a display of war products made by the Galion Iron Works and Manufacturing company, and mechanized equipment from Camp Millard.

At the park there was music by Jesse and his "Rangers." This was followed with an all-western horse show.

The evening's program opened with a Mexican Fiesta with 200 participants. Bicycle races were held at 8:30 followed with music. At 8:30 were the motorcycle races and demonstration. Riders who participated in the Toronto, Ontario, Canada, races on July 1, rode. The bond selling program was held at 9:30 o'clock, and a bond raffle at 10.

The aerial act slated for both afternoon and evening, had to be cancelled because one of the artists was injured.

BRICKER'S ABILITY TO DRAW VOTES PRAISED

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 5 — Congressman Thomas A. Jenkins today praised the vote-getting ability of Gov. Bricker in outlining the role he expects the Ohio chief executive to play in a Republican victory in November.

The presidential candidate, Gov. Thomas Dewey of New York, will carry his home state and along with Bricker will take Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Kentucky, Tennessee and Oklahoma, Jenkins declared in an interview.

The vice presidential nominee will carry Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan, the G.O.P. representative from Ironton, O., asserted.

"Bricker is also very strong west of the Mississippi and along the Pacific and Atlantic coasts," Jenkins declared. "Ohio will back the ticket to the limit."

The Buckeye state's 20 Republican congressmen were disappointed at the party's failure to nominate Bricker for president, but they plan to go down the line for the Dewey-Bricker ticket "chosen by a thoughtful convention," Jenkins said.

STREAMLINE TRAIN WRECKED IN WEST

By The Associated Press

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., July 5—All steam streamlined equipment was a life saver, railroad officials said today, in the wreck of the locomotive and 12 cars of the Santa Fe Chief, one of the west's most luxurious trains.

The fireman and three passengers were killed and more than 30 injured, three seriously, after the train hurtled from the tracks midnight Monday 20 miles west of here.

There were 158 passengers on the 14-car all Pullman train bound for the west coast. Killed were J. S. McLeod of New York City, identified by Metro Goldwyn Mayer studios in Hollywood as head of all M. G. M. film exchanges in the nation; John J. Edwards, Winslow, Ariz., the fireman; Mrs. Ann Bradys, Hammond, Ind., and H. B. Helper, Los Angeles, Calif. Officials said that with old style equipment the losses would have run much higher.

The mountain-type steam locomotive left the tracks as the extra fare steamliner whisked around a curve before a 15-mile straightaway.

CURRENT HEAT WAVE CUTS MILK SUPPLY

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 5—The recent heat wave and current dry weather has converted a milk surplus into a milk shortage in Ohio markets, C. L. Blackman, animal husbandry specialist at Ohio State university, reported today.

"The shortage is pretty general throughout the state, being greatest in the southern area around Cincinnati," he said.

Blackman explained that excessive heat burned bluegrass and reduced both the amount and palatability of the Ohio forage. He said that contrary to popular belief, the main reason for lower milk production was not flies bothering the cattle.

The hot weather also increased the demand for milk as a beverage. Distributors can obtain it in manufacturing plants some of the milk which otherwise would be made into evaporated or powdered milk, Blackman said.

He advised farmers to feed heavy grain roughage to supplement short pastures and also use soybeans to maintain milk production. Farmers who feed their cows alfalfa or clover can keep them producing with home grown grains, but cows which are fed silage or non-legume hay should also be given high protein concentrate, Blackman declared.

TEACH VOLUNTEER SWIM INSTRUCTORS

2-Week Course for Red Cross Teachers Starts.

A two-week instruction period for swimmers who have volunteered to serve as instructors started Monday at Crystal Lake, Ted Brownlee, chairman of Marion Red Cross water safety program, announced. Approximately 12 have volunteered as teachers and will attend evening classes Monday through Friday at 8:30 p. m. Instructions will be under the supervision of J. F. Copper, of Washington, D. C. national representative of first aid and water safety.

Mr. Brownlee stated that more instructors can be used when the beginners' classes start next week. All who wish to apply as an instructor may come during one of the evening periods to Crystal Lake.

The beginners' class will start next Monday from 10 a. m. till noon. Instructions will be held each Monday through Friday during the two-week training period. Particular emphasis is being placed this year on preinduction swimming since knowing how to swim is one of the requisites after men and women are members of the armed forces.

Through the courtesy of Crystal Lake park authorities, a special rate of 10 cents for children under 12 years of age and 20 cents for those over 12 years has been established for those desiring instructions.

Through professional associations, we serve EVERYWHERE in the country.

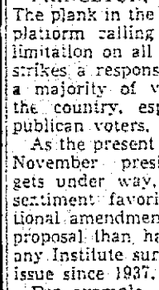
Garden Tips

Growing Food In Summer Vacation

By The Associated Press

Simply because a family is in the country or near the beach for the summer, it does not follow that gardening is an impossibility.

On the other hand, it is practical and patriotic to start a victory garden at the summer place.



Not only will you be aiding the war effort but you will be saving money by having your own fresh vegetables.

Care must be taken, however, to grow only short-season crops, vegetables that will bear quickly from seed or seedling.

It is wiser to buy started plants, but if seedlings are not available, sow seeds. Remember, though, the seeds must germinate quickly so the plants will grow rapidly.

In starting new vacation gardens, set seeds deeper than if you were sowing in the spring, tamp the soil down firmly, and give the soil a thorough soaking. When the seedlings appear, hoe regularly, to loosen the soil. When seedlings are big enough to move, thin them to about four inches apart, for crowded plants do not grow quickly.

Beets, carrots, turnips and kohlrabi are among vegetables that do well in a short season.

Poll Shows Public Favors Two-Term Presidential Limit

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., July 5—The plank in the Republican party platform calling for a two-term limitation on all future presidents strikes a responsive chord among a majority of voters throughout the country, especially the Republican voters.

As the present campaign for the November presidential election gets under way, there is greater sentiment favoring a constitutional amendment embodying this proposal than has been found in any Institute survey taken on the issue since 1937.

For example, while one would expect opinion on the issue to divide strictly along party lines, actually more than four in every ten of those who say they are going to vote for Roosevelt in November express the view that the two-term limitation is a good idea—for the future.

The issue was put to voters in a nationwide cross-section survey as follows:

"Would you favor adding a law to the Constitution which would prevent any president of the United States from being reelected AFTER THIS YEAR'S ELECTION if he has already served two terms?"

The vote today, as compared with that in earlier surveys:

	Favor Proposal	Oppose
April, '43	46%	54%
Dec., '43	54	46
TODAY	66	34

The Condition of Defeat

MOST significant detail of the war news from Europe is recurrent mention of German troop retreating and surrendering without the struggle they are perfectly able to make. Many of these dispatches recount, are discovered to be non-Germans pressed into military service, with no will to fight.

In Italy and in Russia, some points of resistance where strong resistance was expected are being approached and enveloped with a speed that is not all a tribute to superior equipment and manpower. There have been reports from the Normandy area that German airplane pilots have behaved in some instances as though they were more anxious to return to their bases than to match their machines and skill with Allied airmen.

Properly, Allied opinion has been schooled to expect a maximum German effort in the showdown. Frequent warnings have discounted the tendency to hope the climactic effort this summer may be more successful more quickly than previous experience with German fighting power justified. It is plain, moreover, that isolated instances of disintegration and collapse do not constitute compelling evidence.

But it is a fact, nevertheless, that the German army, mauled on the eastern front by the Russians, dispirited in Africa, Italy and now France by the western Allies and held in suspense by the threat of new invasions and the decline of German air power, no longer is the apparently indomitable force it was when it built its reputation in 1939, 1940 and 1941. It is showing the unfailing signs of an army that knows it is beaten and is fighting for time. In isolated instances, at least, it is betraying a condition of defeat.

Sniffishness

THERE are early signs that sniffishness is to be the Democratic campaign line this year. Remarks by party spokesmen and the New Deal press on the Republican candidates and policies chosen at Chicago reveal an attitude of haughty contempt for the very existence of opposition—an attitude of indignation over the presentation of any alternative to existing policies—a disposition to revive the smear tactics made famous by Charles Michelson.

One of the smear words being used with reckless abandon is isolationism. Apparently, it has been marked for use as a stuffed club in the campaign, though the fact is no one knows what it means. Of course, the Democrats are attacking the characters of Governors Dewey and Bricker, sneering at them as being variously too much this or too little that. The party platform is being called an "old guard" product, whatever that is. There is no evident inclination to concede that the Republican party represents the earnest efforts of a great many Americans to accomplish legitimate aims within the framework of the two-party system.

It looks very much at the outset as though Democrats intended to make an issue not only of the questions posed by their party record, but also of political attitudes. They are dangerously close on their part to an attitude of arrogance against and contempt for the right of the opposition to be heard, if not with agreement, at least with tolerance. The problems of the United States in these days are too grave to be approached with the derisive sniffs that are the trademark of the New Deal's defenders.

Depression Ghosts

LEGISLATIVELY and administratively, WPA and PWA have lifted their last shovelful of dirt and raked their last leaf. It remains to be seen whether their ghosts will stay put under the twin headstones marked: Born in depression. Died July 1, 1944, during wartime.

What they did, didn't do and might have done will continue in controversy, and sharply so in the event jobs again become too few to satisfy the demand for wages. There is much to be learned from their records, but how much will have been learned must await the next national trial by unemployment. Even the most optimistic dare not hope it never can happen again; they dare only to hope that when it does happen again the solution may be more incisive, more productive of tangible results than the great, sprawling, awkward public colossus which sprang from the alliance of economic despair and political opportunism during the Roosevelt administration.

The principle of public works to stabilize the national economy deserves something better than it has been given. Like every worthwhile principle, it deserves a quality of administration which does not jeopardise the objective by the means used to reach it.

Fighting "Old-Timers"

Tribute to 60-70 Group for Wartime Service.

WASHINGTON — Way the old boys in this war effort have been registered I don't know. They are doing a magnificent job. Men and women between the 60's and 70's—most of them retired on pensions—are making a big contribution to industrial labor.

After a trip across the country and back, through scores of those old factories, I checked with the Department of Labor on statistics. Youth in wartime labor has been given plenty of attention, the old-timers little. Actually, the Labor Department says, there normally are around 2,000,000 persons over 65 in the labor force. Now there are half a million more than that.

These half-million can be divided into two classes—those who want jobs and now find they can get them—and those who are just willing to help out. The second category is by far the larger. Labor officials here estimate that around 350,000 persons over 65 have returned to work solely for patriotic reasons.

The contribution they are making deserves more than passing notice. I have talked to many Pullman and train conductors who have returned from retirement just to help out. What they suffer in 20-hour days and the body-shakings that wartime roadbeds subject them to is nothing short of brutal.

This is one industry. There are hundreds of them. There are grandmothers and grandfathers who are riveters, truck drivers, mechanics and other heavy-duty laborers. They also are inspectors, welders, seamsters and seamstresses. They are employed in detailed work that takes the patience of Job and the eye of an eagle.

Among these old-timers I have a favorite. His name is Daniel T. Shaw. He's from New England. His record is on file with the merchant marine and a little further down the street than that, with the Navy.

In Two Wars

When World War I came rolling along, Dan Shaw tried to enlist. Nothing doing, said the Army and Navy recruiting officers. Dan didn't give up. He finally worked his way into the merchant marine. A few months later, despite of his age, he was inducted into the regular Navy. He took to salt water like a whale. When the first World War was over, he had a stripe and a half on his sleeve.

Today, Dan Shaw, who was turned down for being over age in World War I, is Captain Daniel T. Shaw of the merchant marine, the skipper of a liberty ship. His experiences can't be recorded until this war is nearing its close or over, but they have been plenty.

The rugged 72-year-old four-striper is on pension from the New England Bell Telephone Co. He worked for 33 years to earn his retirement. It was just a little over 50 years ago that he started this work.

SIR BERNARD PARES

* * *

Sir Bernard Pares, who is now teaching at Cornell, has produced one of the few tempered and balanced studies of Russia's relation to the future of the world I have read. Sir Bernard's book is called "Russia and the Peace." It is not a long book, it contains no fuming prejudices, it never minimizes Russia mistakes. But also it does not minimize western mistakes either, which is as fair as it is unusual.

Sir Bernard says one of the most frequent catchwords one hears in Russia is that it is full of communists, but without communism. This is a mot based on a conflict that most of us have forgotten—to wit, the battle between Stalin and Trotsky. They divided over a number of matters, but chiefly over the question of world revolution. Trotsky wanted to trip up the world; his main interest was in extending the revolution to Germany, England, the United States and so forth. Stalin, who might have been a Russian priest if he had not been confined to a punishment cell for a minor offense in his seminary, has, Sir Bernard points out always wanted to develop Russia.

It was this situation that embarrassed communists the world over. The world revolution became the objective of many communists outside Russia, and their effort seriously embarrassed, in turn, Stalin. He saw, Sir Bernard says, that to improve Russian conditions he must have the help of the western world, yet whenever he tried for the help, he found his way blocked by prejudice born of the activity of communists in these western countries. It was this situation, largely, which lead to a long period in which the Internationale was not called together, and finally to the dissolution of the Comintern.

Since the nineties, Sir Bernard has lived much in Russia. He likes Russians, too, and seems to understand them. His argument is very well backed by the fact he produces, and very simple indeed. We are in a good 20 years behind the times in our thought about Russia, he declares. It is wasteful and pretty silly, he thinks, to allow prejudices acquired in 1917-23 to stand between us and cooperation with modern Russia.

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Thursday, July 5, 1934.

Marion was recovering from what was said to be "the noisiest but safest and sanest Independence day in the history of the city." A highlight of the celebration held the previous day was the picnic sponsored by the Federal Labor Union at Garfield Park which was attended by approximately 4,000 persons.

A. W. Kette was elected president of the Marion Y. M. C. A. at a meeting of the board of directors, to fill the unexpired term of John Probst. J. J. Stafford was named vice president.

President Roosevelt was on a leisurely cruise along the shore of ancient Haiti to a rendezvous with President Stenio Vincent of the Island republic.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Saturday, July 5, 1924.

The Democratic national convention at Madison Square Garden, New York City, stood deadlocked after 76 ballots in its effort to nominate a candidate for the presidency. The leaders were McAdoo with 513 and Smith 368. The nearest contenders to these two were John W. Davis 75½ and Underwood 47½. There were indications that a "dark horse" would ultimately be nominated and demands for withdrawal of McAdoo and Smith were beginning to be heard. Delegates were becoming discouraged and extremely weary of continual sessions, made more uncomfortable by extremely hot weather. A surprise proposal that the convention be taken away from New York and reconvened July 21 in Kansas City was voted down 1067.3 to 82.7.

THE FILE CLOSES

Thomas E. Dewey—"E" for Efficiency

Tidiness in Government His Chief Interest.

THE initial "E" in Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's name stands for Edmund. But in New York, where he made the public record that brought him the Republican presidential nomination, the "E" might stand for Efficiency.

As public prosecutor, while winning his first national fame as the Nemesis of big-time crime working hand-in-glove with big-time political machines, he worked out the details of his cases so meticulously and thoroughly that their outcome was a foregone conclusion.

As governor, he has piled up a record of administrative efficiency since 1942 that will stand for years to come. It has been said of him that he leaves nothing to chance.

As a vote-getter, while he undoubtedly was helped enormously by his achievements as prosecutor, he displayed the same passion for thoroughness, organizing smooth - running machinery which aimed to make contact with individual voters.

His administrative method throughout his public career has been to surround himself with the ablest persons he can find, make certain they are thoroughly trained in what he wants them to do, then give them a free rein to do it under his supervision. He has a passion for teamwork.

The teamwork technique has been applied during his governorship from appointive officials down to legislators. He believes implicitly in the effectuality of party government, if the party pulls together. He does not impose his will on the legislature, but aims to bring its members into the "areas of agreement" he spoke of in his speech of acceptance at Chicago Wednesday night.

As demonstrated in New York state political affairs, Gov. Dewey holds that a political party's best asset is good administration. He never has used slogans, is a conservative in financial matters and a liberal in social views.

WHILE Gov. Dewey has not been aloof to the realities of party politics in such things as patronage, he has insisted that political appointees must do the work they are appointed to do. Those who have been offended by inability to get jobs they sought have been comforted by the fact that Gov. Dewey's leadership of the party, by being incisive and uncompromising where questionable decisions were concerned, had given it—and him—public support.

His promise in his acceptance speech at Chicago to surround himself with the best qualified men he could find for cabinet positions, then to let them exercise their authority has been his method in New York. He went so far in state organization as to retain two Democratic cabinet officers for their ability.

Consistent with his own practice of letting the office seek the man, which he abandoned only when he sought the Republican presidential nomination in 1940 and was smothered under the Willkie boom, he has said he believes in drafting public officials.

His confidence in teamwork extends beyond the operation of New York's official family. He has practiced it on difficult problems of labor relations. When northeastern states were threatened with a livestock feed shortage, he organized a team of states which claims credit for getting enough feed into the area to save dairy and poultry farmers last year.

He expressed confidence at Chicago that the United States can be made the beneficiary of the same method, both nationally and internationally. He believes areas of agreement exist on all public questions; that it is the duty of public officials to encourage action within those areas, that it is never their duty to encourage divisions of opinion. He has great faith in public opinion as a guide for political policy. He carries his faith to the point of belief in public opinion as the most reliable guide for foreign policy, a position which enables him to assail the Roosevelt administration for its practice of keeping foreign policy in the realm of mystery.

In a recent series of articles by Henry Gemmill appearing in The Wall Street Journal, Gov. Dewey's character was summed up like this: "Personally, politically New York's governor is neat and tidy—a perfectionist and a very tough guy." The last phrase refers to his ability to handle himself when the pressure is on—a faculty he developed in part, while prosecuting some of the toughest characters of the generation.

"Mr. Dewey is having an enormous lot of fun running the state of New York," Mr. Gemmill wrote. "It gives him the biggest chance yet to indulge his passion. A tidy organization of state governmental functions is one of the larger corollaries of the perfectionist aspect of the Dewey personality. When he thinks about federal agencies which 'overlap' or 'supersede' one another, he becomes really distressed."

ON THE personality side, which will become familiar during the campaign, Gov. Dewey has been accused of one weakness. He does not have much sympathy for the "humanization" type of political buildup. He will wear no Indian bonnets, do no photogenic fishing.

As governor of New York he has kissed no babies, opened no baseball seasons, marched in no parades. It is said he even declines bids to dine at homes where he was not invited before he became governor.

While the governor is thought of as a man of means, Mr. Gemmill reports that after renting for several years the Duchess county farm on which he spends much of his time, he made a down payment on it five years ago and is still paying off the mortgage. Certainly, there is no similarity in this respect with the most famous landholder of Duchess county, President Roosevelt.

As a presidential candidate—judged by his personality and methods as revealed in New York experiences—Mr. Gemmill believes Gov. Dewey will do his campaigning quietly, skillfully, modernly and very much to the point.

He is an excellent radio speaker and used the radio to excellent advantage in his New York campaigns. His political appeal will be to the forces of unity. He will try to express the longing of all voters not already committed by partisanship and prejudice for a common ground of determination to build a finer and more prosperous country, free of strife and division.

His campaign, unlike the presidential campaigns of Mr. Willkie and Alfred M. Landon, will be handled by men with full experience in metropolitan politics—the stronghold of the Roosevelt organization.

He will show a good sense of timing, Mr. Gemmill predicts, and may be expected to drop a few "blockbusters" where they will do the most damage.

Though it is apparent that Gov. Dewey has tried in every way possible to prepare himself for the presidential nomination and the presidency, if it came to him, Mr. Gemmill points out that he did not believe 1944 would be his year.

"Dewey has been credited with great political sagacity in pledging, at the very beginning, that he would complete his four-year term as governor, thus relieving himself of the necessity of seeking the presidency but leaving the door open for a draft," he explains. "But his confidants swear that his promise was sincere; that he thought Willkie would dominate national party politics and so resigned himself to state affairs. They say it is just part of the remarkable and persistent Dewey good luck that Mr. Willkie ran himself out of the race."

THE Dewey political luck is a legend in New York state. When the Democrats insisted on making the race for lieutenant governor a test of the governor's strength last November, Mr. Dewey accepted the challenge and pined back the plotters' ears by getting his man elected. When James A. Farley, before his resignation as state Democratic chairman, heckled the governor for putting off special congressional elections and the elections finally were held, the Republicans picked up a seat the Democrats had held for a political generation.

Gov. Dewey's basic idea on foreign policy, as explained at Chicago, is that with the prosecution of the war safely in the hands of the military chiefs, the peace must be placed in the hands of men with the strength and determination to make it last. His answer to the expected Democratic cry against changing horses in the middle of the stream probably will be the question, "In the middle of what stream?" He will contend that peace also is a stream; that it must be waged just as aggressively as war; that generals and admirals can win the war, but only a young, vigorous administration heading an united country and believing in the glory of its future can win the peace.

War Bond Sales Point

(Reprinted by request)

I'm buying a bond for a freckled kid
Who lived down the street a way—
A boy with a dog just a while ago—
A name on a list today. . . .
I'm buying a bond for a barefoot lad
Who only a short time back
Was romping the fields of the old home town
But died in a far attack!

I'm penning a rose in the memory
Of youngsters who left the town
With laughter and jokes and their hearts in sign
To take on the scrappers' frown;
The kids who were down in the swimmin' hole
Or played in the big school show—
The boys who'd be out on the sandlots now . . .
Except that it can't be so!

I'm signing for all I can take aboard;
I thought I had done my share
Until in the home town sheet today
I saw "Johnny Adams" there;
He'd brought me my papers every night,
A child on a bike bright red;
He's riding the path to the house right now . . .
I thought . . . but the lad is dead!

I've read all the ads in the War Bond drive
The work of the writers slick;
But, God, when I think that it takes that stuff
It leaves me a little sick;
The picture of boys on a village green
Or trooping across the mead
Who now lie under a cross-filled field
Is all that we ought to need.

I listen to speeches o'er mikes galore
That tell of the War Bond drive,
But all I hear is the cannon's roar—
The whine of a power-dive;
The speeches, the music, the ballyhoo—
All leave me a little cold . . .
For I know a boy who just died for me—
And couldn't be quite that old!

A duty? A noble and handsome act,
This taking of War Bonds? Bunk!
Since when was investment on sure things
A sacrifice? Scrap such junk! . . .
I'm doing a painless and little thing;
One sales point alone rings true!
My debt to those lads from the old home town
Who, asked for their lives, came through!

CAN YOU REMEMBER—

Away back when you thought children shouldn't play with guns?

Campaign Song

Oh dewy was the morning
And dewy was the day
When Dewey got the signal
And leap'd into the fray!
Oh dewy are the prospects
Of Dewey coming through,
And do we see a battle?
Oh do we? Yes, we do!

Uncounted eyes were dewy
As Dewey they observed:
The eyes were Democratic—
The mouths were downward curved;
"Oh do we take it easy?"
They cried with feelings hot,
The echo rang out "Do we?"—
They answered, "We do not!"

Theme song for Thomas E. Dewey: "Owosso beautiful morning, oh what a beautiful day."

Improvement

By Truman Twill

This is meant to be constructive criticism on political broadcasts.

They started to bring politics to us radio listeners in 1924 when it still was astonishing to flip a switch and get static out of thin air. That was the year Alabama led off the Democratic roll call with its votes for Underwood.

By 1928, the unseen audience had developed so much that Al Smith's pronunciations and Herbert Hoover's split infinitives were sucking out of loud speakers like sore thumbs.

In 1932, the modern era of politics via radio was ushered in by Franklin D. Roosevelt, first politician to understand the microphone couldn't vote anyway, so why argue with it?

In 1936, at the Republican convention in Cleveland, politics went in for sound effects with a gadget to record the decibel rating of audience reaction to the speeches which led up to the nominations of Alf Landon and the late Frank Knox. Mr. Roosevelt still was the easy leader of the Crossley poll.

In 1940, they put the "studio audience" on the air. "We want Willkie" was piped from Philadelphia to all points of the country, and a few weeks later Mayor Kelly saw to it that Chicago sounded as though it wanted Roosevelt and Wallace, too. In the campaign, Mr. Willkie lost most of his voice and the election to boot.

We now have had the opening attractions for 1944, and the rest will follow. Politics is on the air for keeps. Microphone technique for politicians is as important as kissing babies used to be. But why not go the rest of the way and do this thing right?

We submit that what the radio audience wants is the right to listen to political speeches without interruption. The first step in that direction is to put the speakers under glass and let them orate without being drowned out every whipstitch while a bunch of human calliopes hold down the keys and blow off steam.

The speaker knows where he wants applause. Just like any other performer on the radio, and that's where he should get it—by means of applause cards held up in front of the listeners, the way they do for radio shows. Six rounds every half hour should be enough to keep listeners awake and remind the unseen audience the guy has them eating out of his hand.

Without the slightest hope of improvement, we nevertheless make the suggestion that it should be done. Every radio listener by this time knows what applause sounds like—like static, only worse.

So They Say—

To any threat to impair the freedom of learning, teaching and thinking, free men can offer no appeasement, no compromise, no half-way measures.—Dr. George D. Stoddard, N. Y. commissioner of education.

We must not allow our minds to become so distracted by the war that we forget the affairs of government and thereby open the doors for the unscrupulous to exploit their schemes throughout our country. — Ohio Supreme Court Chief Justice Carl V. Weygandt.

We have not enough industry to serve America's needs or the world's needs. In this country we have done pretty well as far as we have gone, but there must be more and more industry. It is essential to political and economic freedom.—Henry Ford

That we may have a winning, not a lost generation.....

Let's never forget that this is a people's war. It's being fought to free us from the kind of government that tells people not only what to do, but what to think and what to feel.

Now we have regulations galore. Boards and bureaus and committees and commissions which bore into the daily life of all of us. These are essential . . . let there be no doubt about it . . . to this first and principal job of winning a war against masters who would make us slaves.

But amid all the rules, let's not get the habit of doing only what we're told. We need ideas, original thinking, initiative, research, responsibility. Not one of us may be excused from these duties of free men . . . There must be jobs for millions of soldiers and war workers. Then we'll all produce for peace. Those jobs will be in American business and industry where we all will execute the ideas, the thinking, the research.

There'll be a period of transition from war to peace, while plants are converting, stores are being re-stocked, businesses closed-for-the-duration readied-up. Even after business is going full blast, it'll take a little time before the money starts coming in to pay the wages, and for the materials, the machinery, the maintenance.

So America will need a money reserve for those days of transition. Your War Bonds are your reserve . . . and wise you are to buy them. Business, too, needs money it has saved during war time to help it get going fast in peace . . . a reserve to preserve freedom.

The mass manufacture and sales of business and industry have helped make America great. There must not be, among the necessary regulations of war, any rule that prevents business from saving the money that is vital if it is to do its part to insure our having a winning, not a lost generation.

THREE-WAY SHUTTLE BOMBING ON American Flying Fortresses have participated for the first time in three-way shuttle assaults on Nazi target on the continent. Taking off from English bases, giant bombers plastered Berlin and flew on to airfields in Russia. After reloading bomb bays and refueling they headed for Italy, dropping their missiles on an oil refinery at Drohobycz, 45 miles southwest of Lwow, Poland. The four-motored craft reached their Italian bases without loss. Bombing runs from Berlin to Italy have completed the triangle as shown on map.

ABOUT ANYTHING

In and Around Marion

Slightly Mixed Up

When a member of the family in the armed forces zooms over the home lot there's no time for putting on makeup and otherwise grooming one's self for appearing in public, as one Marion woman can testify. At ease, after following the feminine custom of kicking off her pumps under the table in order to the better enjoy her lunch, she heard the plane low over the house and knew it was the cue for the family to go into action. Why she thought she had to appear in full dress or how she expected to get into the shoes on the run she doesn't know, but she did. Lunging under the table she retrieved her shoes on the run and when she came to found herself standing barefoot in the yard and frantically waving her pumps.

* * *

Clothes-Basket Bed

These modern day parents can solve any emergency if you ask one Marionite, who with others in a downtown restaurant smilingly put their stamp of approval on the sensible solution of the problem of transporting the infant member of the family. The baby was most comfortable and as cool as the proverbial cucumber in his clothesbasket bed and didn't mind in the least being parked at a table while his parents made the rounds to select their luncheon menu.

* * *

Servicemen's Hats

You may laugh at women's hats but none of them beats the varieties of angles at which servicemen's hats are worn. Gobs hats seem to be the most adaptable. Sometimes they resemble women's "half-hats" when they are worn on the very back of the head and pulled out at the sides. It's a miracle how the sailors keep those hats on that way. Either they have oddly bulging heads or they have learned nurses' tricks of using hat pins or bobby pins. But perhaps that is the hitherto undiscovered reason for cowlicks —to hang hats on!

Table Talk

Turn the lights low, gather on three sides of an at-other-times commonplace looking small four-legged table, some of you, place hands in mystic contact with those of the next seated, little finger to little finger, thumb to thumb, let someone give the solemn instruction, "down for 'yes' and up for 'no'." chant together, "Rise, table, rise. Rise, table, rise." There you have the setting for an increasingly popular parlor pastime, one that will no doubt rival in amount of its popularity that of the ouija board of the last war. The uncanny action of the table will reveal answers to your financial fears, your traveling problems, your love affairs, or will even reveal a lady's true age if you but ask the questions so they may be answered with a simple "yes" or "no" or by so many taps of the rising, then falling table legs. According to those its reliability has impressed, "it's absolutely right the majority of the time;" "it seldom contradicts itself." Different explanations have been put forward for the table's queer behavior by various persons. It's electric current in the bodies of the "players"; it's "power of mind over matter"; it's just plain "hokum"—a trick of some smart manipulator. Whatever your explanation, it's a topic for conversation.

* * *

No Sale

What is more disappointing to the teller of a tale than recounting a joke everyone has heard? Maybe it's this. One lady was quite amused at a joke she heard and thought to pass it on. "Why," she asked, "won't an Englishman go to a show on Saturday night?" Her listeners were "stumped." "Because he's afraid he may burst out laughing in church the next day!" she finished. It didn't register. No one smiled. She wondered if it could be they have a touch of the same nationality in their makeup.

Music Gets Reaction

Did you ever stop and watch a Friday night crowd of shoppers walking along Center street? It is quite interesting to note the change of pace when the Salvation Army band strikes up a march. As if on command, pedestrians who have been ambling along in their own individual gaits, immediately fall into step. It's also amusing to see the few who refuse to walk with the music and consciously make an effort to step along "out of time."

U. S. BOMBERS FOLLOW HEAVY RAF ASSAULT

Planes Hammer Airfields and Bomb Nests in France, Low Countries.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 5 — American Fortresses and Liberators bombed airfields in Holland and Belgium, rocket bomb nests and other targets in the Pas-De-Calais department of France today in swift continuance of devastating attacks by the RAF from the channel coast to the German Ruhr.

Up to 500 U. S. planes, half heavy bombers and half convoying fighters, carried out the forenoon assault in cloudy weather with opposition so scant that all returned. Other fighter formations divebombed and strafed a variety of targets at undisclosed points in Europe, again without loss.

RAF Strikes in Night

British heavy and light bombers struck before dawn at railroads, troop bivouacs and rocket bomb launching platforms, and a synthetic oil plant in the Ruhr.

During the sweeping overnight operations, which climaxed a July 4 display of aerial might in which nearly 5,000 planes ranged over the continent yesterday, RAF Lancasters and Halifaxes pounded railway yards at Villeneuve St. Georges on the southeastern outskirts of Paris and at Orleans, 75 miles to the south.

The blows renewed a campaign —recently interrupted by bad weather—to disrupt the movement of enemy supplies and reinforcements to the Normandy battlefront.

Another formation of British heavies plastered launching ramps for flying bombs in northern France—the second heavy attack in less than 24 hours on their lair of the robot raiders which continued to drone across the channel during the night.

Fourteen heavy bombers were reported lost in the attack on rail yards below Paris while 13 planes were lost in raids on the Ruhr and the rocketbomb nests and in minelaying operations. The Germans asserted 40 four-engined bombers were downed during the night.

Communications Hit

Mosquitos and Bostons of the Second Tactical Air Force also ranged over France during the night, making what allied air headquarters described as a record number of attacks on German communications.

Other light bombers attacked German reinforcements in the battle zone during the night.

RAF coastal command planes kept up attacks on enemy shipping off the French coast yesterday afternoon and last night. Beaufighters scored six hits on six small German vessels off Boulogne and Mosquitos damaged two minesweepers off Brittany.

Allied planes crossed the channel this morning at intervals and English coastal residents frequently heard explosions on the French side. The weather over the battle area, while improved, still was not conducive to the best aerial operations.

Battle of Minsk Seen As Decisive Point of Conflict

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The Red avalanche, having torn the Germans loose from the strategic strongholds of Minsk and Polotsk, has continued to roll the Nazi line back in what bids fair to be the greatest disaster that yet has overtaken the man who three years ago marched his conquering legions over this old invasion route in his arrogant quest of world domination.

Berlin itself has admitted that the Russian advances have been so rapid that big German units have been left in the rear of the Muscovites. The Nazi losses have been colossal—something like a quarter of a million men killed or captured in the past thirteen days. This sacrifice has been imposed by Hitler himself who has ordered his men to fight to the death and, according to captured Nazi General Bauemler, has been enforcing this bloody command by exacting reprisals for disobedience.

Minsk Decisive Battle

We have here a picture of German distress which strengthens the belief of observers that the battle of Minsk will prove to be one of the decisive engagements of the entire war. The conservative London Times yesterday in describing the position declared that "part of the eastern front today presents a spectacle that has not been seen in Europe since 1918—that of a broken German army."

This analyst doesn't make it his business to prophesy, but only to indicate trends—possibilities and probabilities. There's the possibility of a German debacle in White Russia. However, the facts don't warrant us in assuming a collapse at the moment. A bit more time will tell whether Prussian military skill will again enable a withdrawal to other defenses.

In any event, the disaster already visited on the Hitlerites, and the great military advantage gained by the victory in the Minsk sector, rank this as one of the decisive contributions to Hitler's rapidly approaching downfall. Possession of the ancient citadel of Minsk is permitting the Red armies to roll westward towards east Prussia, Warsaw—and Berlin! Polotsk is the open sesame to Latvia and Lithuania, and the onrushing Muscovites were said to be less than a score of miles from the frontiers of these Baltic states today.

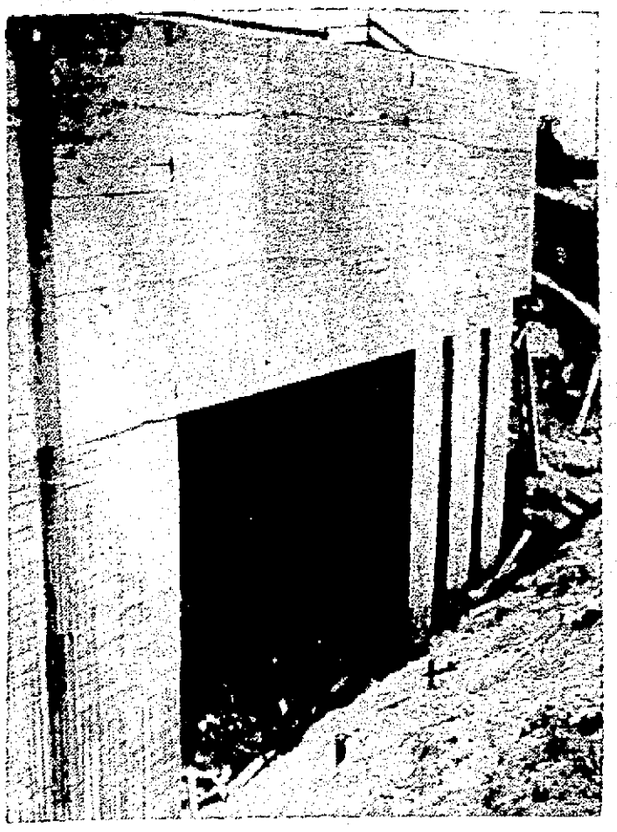
Affects Progress of War

As remarked in this column yesterday, the progress of the European war as a whole in the immediate future seems to me to depend largely on this battle of Minsk and on the developing battle of Normandy. The triumph of Minsk, coupled with early Allied success in smashing through the German defenses in Normandy into the French hinterland, most certainly would (or let's say "will") speed the termination of the war vastly.

These two major victories will set the eastern and western millstones to grinding at full speed on their Hitlerian grist.

The western Allies are getting ahead with their part of the contract in their Herculean amphibious operation which has no parallel in history. They retain the initiative and are steadily attacking to crash the German gate to the open fields of France.

The Americans on the Allied right wing during the past twenty-four hours have driven the Nazis back to within a mile of La Haye Du Puits, German anchor in western Normandy. On the other flank, the Canadians were fighting hand to hand with the Hitlerites three miles from the railway center of Caen, which is the padlock on the Nazi barrier across the peninsula.



THIS NAZI PROJECT IS SUSPENDED. Massive concrete construction which the Nazis planned for some unknown purpose is pictured above—unfinished and destined to stay that way since our forces captured it in their inland sweep from the Normandy coast. A giant structure (note the size of the Yanks in the entrance), it forms a tunnel 130 ft. long by 22 high and 22 wide, with a roof 16 ft. thick, and is believed to have been intended for use in the launching of robot bombs.

Marion Woman's Husband Wounded

Word has been received here that Pfc. Dana C. Hinkle, a former Marion man and husband of Mrs. Elsie Hinkle of 874 Bellefontaine avenue, was wounded seriously in action on Biak island June 10.

The message came in a telegram from the War department Saturday and stated a letter containing his present mailing address would follow. The telegram came to Mrs. Hinkle at her home here but she has been working at the Wolf Creek Ordnance Plant in Tennessee for several months and was forwarded to her there. She has returned here to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Williamson of Bellefontaine avenue, to await further word from Washington.

A former employe of the Montgomery Ward store here and of the Osgood Co., Pfc. Hinkle entered service Nov. 14, 1941 and was stationed at Camp Wheeler, Macon, Ga., and Ft. Lewis, Wash., before going overseas in April, 1942. He was twice in the New Guinea area. He and Mrs. Hinkle were married July 28, 1941.

DRY WEATHER HITS CROPS AND GARDENS

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 5—Insufficient rain during the past month resulted in serious damage to victory and consumer gardens throughout Ohio, agriculturalists at Ohio State university reported today.

"The next week or ten days will determine what happens to garden crops," said H. C. Ramsower, director of agricultural extension at the university.

He said gardens had been "extremely hard hit" throughout the state generally but that the worst section appeared to be southwestern Ohio.

George W. Mindling, state meteorologist, said Central Ohio had its last "good rain" June 2 when .55 of an inch fell. The state average for the month was 2.30 inches, however. In June, 1934, when two consecutive days of 100-degree temperatures were recorded, the average state rainfall was 3.59 inches.

Mindling said no rain for Ohio was in prospect for the next two days, except possible local showers in some sections, and asserted the lack of moisture was rapidly approaching serious proportions.

Invalid Mother Given Son's Medal of Honor

By The Associated Press

AURORA, Ill., July 5—Seated in a rocking chair under a huge oak tree on the lawn of her home, Mrs. Fredericka E. Truemper, an invalid, yesterday accepted the congressional medal of honor awarded posthumously to her son.

In reponse to Mrs. Truemper's request, the medal was presented to her at her home, one of the few times this medal has not been awarded in Washington by the President.

Surrounded by her husband, four sons, two daughters and about 100 friends, Mrs. Truemper wept as Brig. Gen. R. E. O'Neill read the citation, with such phrases as "gallant devotion to duty," and "paid the supreme sacrifice."

Her son, 2nd Lt. Walter E. Truemper, 25, an army air forces navigator, was killed last Feb. 25 when he volunteered to attempt to land a damaged Flying Fortress in an unsuccessful effort to save the life of his wounded pilot. The crew had bailed out.

The Truempers have three other sons in service.

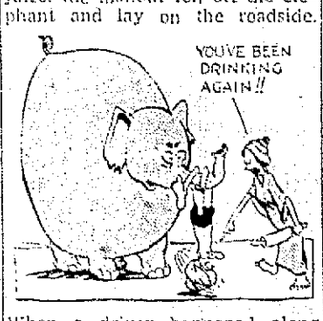
A Woman Conquers

ADVANCED HQ., SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND, Kandy, Ceylon —Allied military masterminds were stymied recently by a roadblock set up by a mahout full of arak and his elephant, equally full of loyalty. Overcome by the local firewater distilled from coconut juice, the mahout fell off the elephant and lay on the roadside.



When a driver happened along and tried to help him, the elephant bared its tusks, raised its trunk and made ready for a frontal attack. The driver retreated. Brass hats stretching away in an increasing vehicular queue behind the barrier finally sent for the mahout's wife. She showed up an hour later, got the column moving, and led her husband away by the ear. The elephant tagged on behind.

Theodore Roosevelt Relics Saved in Mansion Fire

By The Associated Press

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 5—Priceless relics of Theodore Roosevelt were saved today when fire broke out in a garage on the Sagamore Hill estate of the late president and spread to the main house, gutting a wing of the mansion.

Volunteer firemen from four companies fought the blaze for more than an hour, confining it to a section of the home away from where the Roosevelt mementos are kept.

The Long Island home was unoccupied. Mrs. Roosevelt, widow of the 25th president, was reported vacationing in Connecticut.

Origin of the blaze, which demolished the garage and a cottage on the estate, was undetermined. Fire officials did not estimate the amount of damage.

RUSSIANS LANDING ON FINN ISLANDS

By The Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, July 5—Russian troops have begun a large-scale landing operations on the northern shores of Viipuri bay in southern Finland in an apparent attempt to establish a bridgehead behind Finnish lines, the Finnish communique said today.

Red army troops began landing from many boats early Tuesday, the Finnish high command said, supported by coastal batteries firing from the southern shores and by smokescreen.

The town of Viipuri at the head of the bay was captured recently by Russian troops.

The Finnish bulletin also reported landings on islands in the bay of Narva, and said the Soviets had been thrown back into the sea on two of them.

Landings are continuing with violent fighting, the bulletin added.

day night and asked the 75-year-old woman for food, telling her they had not eaten for three days. They clubbed her with an iron pipe, but before they could flee Backus and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Backus, who live on a farm near Delphos, arrived at the Cramer home.

The duo robbed Mr. and Mrs. Backus of $45, tied them up and left in the elderly couple's automobile, forcing Albert to accompany them.

One of the fugitives said he intended to kill a son of Mrs. Cramer's living in Delphos and they searched that city unsuccessfully for him before coming here and going to a cafe for drinks.

Backus had two drinks with the fugitives then pretended to faint. Carried to the car, he fled and summoned police when the men returned to the cafe.

A train blocked the street and delayed the police for 10 minutes, giving the escapees a chance to flee again.

The others who escaped from the hospital last week were John Rosseau, 21, of Cincinnati, sentenced for housebreaking, and Maceo Collins, 30, of Columbus, convicted of rape.

It is estimated that U. S. citizens in 1942 wasted more food than was needed by the armed forces and lend-lease requirements.

Varicose Veins

MEDICAL advance does not consist alone in such an event as a great scientific discovery and its application to a hitherto unconquered disease. There are little skirmishes as well as great battles won against the enemy and sometimes a succession of these little advancements is made in one field over a long period of time so that when the smoke lifts for a moment we find we have really accomplished much more than we supposed.

A very good example of this kind of advance is that made in the field of varicose veins. As I look back at the time when I was an interne in a Chicago hospital in 1907 and 1908 and remember how varicose vein cases were handled, I cannot but be astonished at the difference between then and now and the greatly improved results now.

One of the troubles the varicose vein patient had in the old days was that he couldn't get anybody to think his troubles were real or serious. They were called a minor malady. Well, they were minor to everybody but himself. Then in the old days the surgeons didn't have much faith in their treatments themselves. The patient had to submit to a quite extensive and complicated piece of surgery and over half the time after two or three months of invalidism he was no better off than he was before.

Now after making little improvements here and little advances there the whole problem has cleared up so that his physician can really promise the varicose vein patient something definite and without any long period in bed either. This comes down essentially to the discovery of practical methods of sclerosing veins.

An illustration may help us to understand the real difficulty about varicose veins. Whoever has gasoline enough nowadays and takes even a short drive along streets left neglected in wartime has the picture before him. He wants to go to Jones hardware store. All right he used to drive down Chestnut street. But nowadays the surface of Chestnut street is full of holes and rough spots on the surface, and he has to go slowly. He learns to make little detours and goes to Jones' all right by going along Maple street.

Well, the veins are merely highways and every blood corpuscle is a kind of motor car. In the course of time the inside of the main vein up the leg—Chestnut street—gets rough and traffic is slowed up. Then the valves in the main vein break down. The blood could get up the leg by going along the other veins—called collateral circulation in doctor's language—and these other veins not having been subjected to as much traffic are still in good repair. But the blood not being endowed with sentient judgment can't choose the sensible course, so it goes up the old main highway because hydraulic pressure pushes it into that channel.

The only way to stop it is to close the highway. And that is what sclerosing the veins does, and that is what the modern treatment of varicose veins is. The sclerosing is done with a solution injected into the vein which completely destroys the lining and makes the vein shrivel and grow into a fibrous cord.

The little by little improvements that have been made in this procedure consist mostly in devising of better and better and less and less painful and dangerous sclerosing agents. During recent years organic soapy solutions have almost entirely replaced other sclerosing agents in the treatment of varicose veins.

Possibly the greatest help in the application of these newer methods from the patient's standpoint is that he doesn't have to go to bed. The tests to determine whether a given case is suitable for injection treatments and also the treatments themselves are given in the doctor's office and do not interrupt the patient's work.

The small superficial varicosities that occur mostly in women who have borne children do not need treatment imperatively, but can be sclerosed if desired for cosmetic purposes.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. My girl three and a half years old is so stubborn that no punishment will make her do what she does not want to do.

A. What use punishment at this age to get her to do what you want her to do? Limit punishment to keep her from doing a few things she must never do. This distinction is given quite at length in my bulletin, "Stubbornness," to be had by writing me in care of this paper enclosing a self addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

3 Material is pneumatically blown to the correct thickness into sidewalls and ceilings, without mess or trouble. Eagle workmen are thorough, cut no corners.

4 Proper ventilation wherever necessary (without which, trouble-free results cannot be certain).

Special To The Star

LIMA, O., July 5—Lima won both ends of the holiday double-header from Marion yesterday, 2 to 0 and 8 to 7. The opener was a pitchers' battle in which Ed Wiesler shaded Al Crowe. Wiesler gave up only four hits while Crowe was touched for six. Both runs were scored in the third inning. Fuertes walked and Wiesler singled to center. Bowa fled out but Schmiedeke got out on a bunt, filling the bases. Reside then singled to left driving in two runs. Catcher Bellamy was injured on the throwing hand and was replaced by Vickery. Bailey going to right field to finish the game and also to play the second game.

Marion drove Bob Havenicht out of the box in the sixth of the nightcap and threatened to overcome Limas lead when was 6-1 after two innings. Jim McKinnon stopped the Cubs and Lima won in the last of the seventh with none out when Reside hit the first pitch of Ostrowski over the left field fence. Ninth Inning Rally Gives Cubs 5 to 3 Win Over Dodgers

ZANESVILLE, O., July 5—Marion rallied for two runs in the ninth inning after knotting the score in the eighth to turn back Zanesville 5 to 3 before 862 fans here Monday night to square the series at two games each.

Four hits in the ninth off relief hurler Al Briede resulted in victory for Ed Oley, young right hander making his first appearance with Marion. The youngster allowed 10 hits but pitched shutout ball except for the fourth inning when three bingles, including one of two triples hit by Frank Brown, went for three runs.

Marion ended three straight useless innings in the top of the fourth on Granzig's single and a triple to right center by Bill Morneweg. The Cubs closed in during the seventh on a walk and Paul Vickery's double to center, then tied it up the next inning. Granzig was safe on Ozark's error, stole second and scored on a well spanked single to left by Johnny Smith.

The eighth inning spat expelled Harry Springer and brought in Bricde, who forced Joe Bellamy to fly to left to end the eighth.

Broukal and Vickery opened the ninth with base hits, Broukal taking third on Vickery's drive to center. He scored on Oley's roller to second. But all hands were safe when the throw at the plate

COLONELS SPEND 6 HOURS CLIMBING TO SECOND PLACE TIE

Louisville Only Shade Behind Red Birds Who Split Two with Mud Hens.

By The Associated Press

It took them six hours to do it, but Louisville's Colonels profitably celebrated their Fourth of July by thumping Indianapolis twice to climb into a virtual second-place tie with Columbus in the American Association pennant race.

Meanwhile, Milwaukee widened its top-spot margin to four and a half games by trimming Kansas City, 11-7 and 3-1, stretching the Blues' losing streak to 13 games.

Columbus and fourth-place Toledo divided, the Brood winning the opener, 5-3, and the Red Birds taking the finale, 8-4. In the fourth holiday twin bill, St. Paul swept a pair from Minneapolis, 2-0 and 12-5.

A combination of overtime play and holiday ceremonies kept the Colonel and the host tribe busy until after midnight. A throng of 8,000 watched Louisville finally shake off the Indians with a seven-run splurge in the 13th inning for a 15-8 win in the opener and then spank the Tribe, 5-3, in a seven-inning nightcap.

The double triumph gave the Colonels a record of 45 wins and 28 defeats, compared with Columbus, 43-26 status, but the Red Birds still hold second place by a seven-point percentage margin.

Nick Polly's 15th home run of the season with two men on climaxed Louisville's 13th inning outburst.

The largest July Fourth crowd at Columbus in the past decade, 10,398 fans, saw the Red Birds and Mud Hens battle to a standoff. Harry Kimberlin was credited with his seventh victory as the Mud Hens tallied a pair in the sixth to break a 3-3 deadlock and win the opener. Art Lopatka of Columbus scattered nine hits while his mates thumped John Whitehead in the early stanzas to sew up the nightcap.

Marion Places Two on Squad To Play Newark Team July 12

Two Marion players have been chosen to represent their team on the Ohio State League all-star team which will play at Newark on July 12, Frank M. Colly, league president, announced today. Bill Broukal and Virl Minnis were players honored. Minnis, however, will be unable to appear because he has been recalled by the Jamestown, N. Y., team from which he came to Marion. Choice of all-star players was made by baseball fans in six cities with teams in the league.

Newark claimed the largest number of players honored by being placed on the team, four men being chosen from there. They will not play on the all-star team since Newark, at present in top spot in the league, will set as host team and the men will be retained for the game

Lima Places Three

The Lima Red Birds were runner-up placing three men, while two spots each went to Marion, Middletown, Springfield and Zanesville.

The players named are: Newark, Owen Friend, second baseman; Pop McDonald, third baseman, Eddie Volan, outfield, and Ned Garver, pitcher. Lima, Harvey Zernia, first baseman; Neil Reside, outfield, and Hero Schmiedeck, outfield. Middletown, Steve Senko, outfield; Baine Simon, pitcher. Springfield, William Danes, catcher; Tom Faulkner, Zanesville, Steve Lembo, catcher, Bernie Fiest, pitcher, Bill Broukal, shortstop; Virl Minnis, utility.

"Red" Barnes, Middletown's skipper, will pilot the all stars. He automatically qualified as his team was in second place on July first.

Steve Senko polled more votes than anyone else although Harvey Zernia had a higher percentage of the votes.

The four Newark players named will play with their own team in the game. They will be replaced by runners-up in the voting, who will be announced later.

Honorary berths go to outfielder Roy Eder, Zanesville and pitcher Dick Steinhauer, Lima, both of whom received enough votes to make the team, but are no longer in the league. Eder in service and Steinhauer was returned to the Columbus Red Birds.

Winners in the all star team selection contest will be announced later in the week.

Steve Senko of Middletown Still Leading OSL Batters with .380

Steve Senko, Middletown outfielder, again this week leads the Ohio State league swat race with a mark of .380. This is 18 percentage points under his last quoted mark. His nearest rival for king of swatters is Herb Schmeideke, Lima outfielder, who has surged 20 points to a neat .340 average and second position.

Coming in third this week is Roy Eder Zanesville fly-hawk, with an average of .337, a two-point skid. This probably will be his last average in this league for the duration as he has been called into the service of Uncle Sam.

Looking at the leaders in the other departments finds Neil Reside, Lima outfielder, leads in total bases, with 123, and runs, with 62, shares honors in hits, at 81, with Senko, and is tied for most runs batted in, at 53, with his teammate Harvey Zernia. Zernia, a first baseman, also leads in stolen bases with 21. Eddie Volan, Newark outfielder, replaces Pavlecic in the home run department with six four-baggers to his credit. In triples it's Eder, with 8, and doubles it is Friend of Newark with 15.

Among the pitchers Dick Steinhauer of Lima is setting the pace with seven wins and one defeat. Ned Garver is second with a record of nine wins and three losses. Garver still leads in strike outs as he has 90 strikeouts in the 105 innings he has pitched.

Virl Minnis, now with Jamestown, leads Marion with an average of .316. Catcher Joe Bellamy leads regular Marion players with a .287 average followed by Morneweg with .274 and Broukal with .267. Red Bailey is leading the way for our pitchers as he sports eight wins and four losses.

The Lima Redbirds are leading in team batting with a .289 mark which is four points better than last week. Middletown still leads in team fielding with .943. Marion is last in the team batting figures this week with an average of .245 and is third in fielding with a neat .921 average.

Following are the averages up to June 29, as compiled by the Howe News Bureau of Chicago.

GEORGE GAUTHIER AMONG CANDIDATES FOR ATHLETIC POST

Wesleyan Athletic Director Is Mentioned as Successor to H. P. Townsend.

By LOREN W. TIBBALS
INS Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, O., July 5—George Gauthier, Ohio Wesleyan university football coach for nearly a quarter century, is one of three Ohioans currently mentioned as a possible successor to the late H. P. Townsend as state high school athletic commissioner.

Vacationing in northern Canada, Gauthier could not be reached to comment on his reported candidacy for the $6,500 a year post, but close friends of the veteran Bishop gridmaster discounted the reports as "mere rumors."

One member of the Wesleyan faculty said Gauthier might accept the position if it were offered to him by the Ohio High School Athletic association's board of control.

Makes No Campaign

"But if it's up to George to campaign for the job, he will remain right here in Delaware," the official added.

Gauthier became Ohio Wesleyan football coach 23 years ago, immediately following the completion of his own college work. Six years ago he assumed command of all sports when he became the Bishop school's director of athletics. Because of a shortage of capable coaches, coupled with a tremendous drop in the school's male enrollment, Gauthier has continued to direct the football team. After the war, though, he is expected to turn this phase of his work over to assistants

Five or six years ago, Gauthier weathered one of the fiercest alumni reactions in history of Ohio college football. His first half dozen teams were "world beaters" according to a Wesleyan spokesman. But after that, the school discontinued to subsidize football material. Naturally, talented young players turned to other schools where their offers were much brighter.

In the late 1930's Wesleyan's Red and Black lost consistently, salvaging only one or two games a season. Alumni, who remembered the good old days of Wesleyan football, banned together to force Gauthier to resign. But he stubbornly resisted, came back with 50-50 teams and finally won out. The crowning point of his triumph over the alumni was his appointment as athletic director.

Although affiliated with collegiate sports for the most part, Gauthier always has found time to lend a helping hand to high school athletics. Fourteen years ago he originated the annual Ohio Wesleyan relays, which now rank among the top track and field meets in the Buckeye state. He has managed the Central district Class A basketball tourney for many years and before the annual state high school tournament was transferred to Columbus, took an active part in its direction in Delaware.

The OHSAA board of control has set Saturday, July 8 as the deadline for filing applications for the commissionership. The board probably will be called the following week by President Lloyd M. Kauffman to survey the field of applicants.

"Tag Team Match, Thursday"

Another exciting Tag Team Match has been booked for the two hour match event Thursday night at the Marion Armory. Martino Angelo and Buddy Knox, the team that gave an exciting bout in the Blimp tag match will return together to try their luck against the team of Tiger Jack Moore and Joe Wolfe. Tag Team wrestling is the type match that packs the most action of all type matches and this one should be the best as the fans know the character of all four men. The one hour opening match at 8:30 should be a hard one as Gorilla Pogi and Angelo Martinelli will lock horns, both these men lost their matches last week and will be out for a win Thursday. It Will Be St. Louis Series If July 4 Tradition Holds

By The Associated Press

Pennants aren't won on the 5th of July and they don't pay off until October but Billy Southworth and Luke Sewell are the envy of every manager in baseball today as the St Louis Cardinals and Browns sit on top of the world with the traditional Independence day landmark behind them.

The Red Birds are regarded as a shoo-in to the National pennant with a 10½ game lead but the Brownies face the toughest sort of a struggle from all sides, currently from the Boston Red Sox who trail by only 1½ games after winning seven of 11 since returning to Fenway park.

Southworth's Cards are hotter than the proverbial cannon cracker with six in a row, the latter part at the expense of the New York Giants, 6-2 and 9-1.

MILLION FANS JAM TRACKS, BALL PARKS

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 5 — More than 1,100,000 sports fans pushed their way into baseball parks and race tracks over the three-day July 4 holiday. This is an increase of 184,219 over the number who turned out during the Memorial day holiday.

A total of 593,411 paid their way into the ball parks of the American and National leagues as well as those of the five top minor circuits, the American Association, International, Pacific Coast, Eastern and Southern association. Other thousands attended games in the class B Pony, Interstate and Piedmont loops.

Turf followers to the number of 508,781 jostled into 13 race tracks over the three-day span, betting an aggregate of $24,950,000, an increase of $2,715,689 over the $22,234,311 tossed into the pari-mutuel machines Memorial day.

The largest turnout in yesterday's 172,891 major league attendance was at the Yankee stadium where 37,579 saw Cleveland whip the Yanks twice.

The American association, including a turnout of 10,308, largest at Columbus in 10 years, reported an aggregate of 46,724.

Brooklyn's toboggan slide continued as the Dodgers slumped to their eighth straight loss by bowing twice to Cincinnati, 6-2 and 2-1 in 10 innings.

Chicago popped out of the basement by three percentage points over the Boston Braves by stopping Bob Coleman's crew, 7-1 and 4-2 on neat mound jobs by Les Fleming and Claude Passeau with the help of Dom Dallessandro's slugging.

Pittsburgh hung to second place by one slim percentage points over the Reds by taking the second game from the Phillies, 4-0 after bowing in the opener, 3-2.

The Browns divided two with Philadelphia, winning the early game, 4-0 and failing in the finale 8-2.

Cleveland beat the New York Yankees' prize rookies, Walt Dubiel and Joe Page, 3-1 and 7-2, with Manager Lou Boudreau showing the way in the field and at bat. Chief Reynolds and Ray Poat were the Tribe's winners.

Boston clung to the runnerup spot as Joe Bowman decisioned Detroit's Johnny Gorsica, 7-4 and Bobby Doerr batted in five runs after Hal Newhouser had hung up his 12th win at Clem Hausman's expense 4-3.

Washington split with Chicago, the Nats scoring 2-0 and the Sox copping the second, 3-2.

Act To Guard Health of Livestock at Fair

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, O., July 5—The appointment of Dr. Paul Eippert of Upper Sandusky as official veterinarian for the Wyandot County fair was announced today as the fair board made plans to cooperate with the state department of agriculture in the enforcing of a sanitary code and livestock health rules recently adopted by the department.

Exhibitors of livestock will be required to obtain an acceptance form from the veterinarian before they will be granted a space assignment on the grounds. The measure is expected to better the quality of the stock exhibited by the assurance given to owners of fine herds who have previously refrained from entering for fear of carrying diseases home to the balance of the herd.

Crawford Co. Officer Wins Award in Pacific

BUCYRUS, July 5—Heroism of air infantry lieutenant Clinton S. McLaughlin, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. McLaughlin of Tiro, which brought a story telling of the fight for Hill 700 at Bougainville in March from the war public relations department recently, has brought a citation for the distinguished service cross to the local officer.

Under the direction of Lt. McLaughlin, two fellow infantrymen successfully defended a sector destroying 84 Japs during the course of the battle. The citation states that McLaughlin "directed the fierce action of his men, moving from pillbox to pillbox, with complete disregard for personal safety for successful defense of the position."

70 Families In Engineer Depot Garden Project

One of the sizable Victory Garden projects in Marion county is a five-acre area on which 160 garden plots have been established for use by employes of the Marion Engineer Depot. Over 70 families, are raising large quantities of vegetables for home consumption on this area, located on the north side of Route 30 south, east of the Depot and near the ball diamond.

Cooperation from two units at the Depot, the Post Engineer Division and the Maintenance branch, made this project possible in that the plotting, watering facilities, plowing and cultivating were prepared by them. The leading crops being grown are corn, with 272 rows and potatoes with 254 rows.

The project is supervised by a committee consisting of G. A. Biggerstaff, chairman, Lillian Moser and J. J. Steiner. Mr. Biggerstaff is well qualified as an authority on gardening, as he was formerly a successful farmer in Iowa.

The knowledge that over 60 per cent of the vegetables raised in the United States last year was developed in Victory Gardens is acting as an incentive for the gardeners of Marion Engineer Depot.

DEMAND FOR WHEAT FUTURES STEPS UP

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 5 — A heavy demand for wheat futures developed today when it was reported the Commodity Credit Corp. had ordered the purchase of top grade cash wheat at prices six cents over the loan.

Prices advanced nearly three cents from the day's lows before the buying began to lag. Short covering and substantial commission house buying had caused an earlier rally after the market opened lower under the pressure of hedge selling.

Rye futures advanced sharply and offerings dwindled with the report CCC was supporting wheat prices. Oats also responded with a sharp upturn.

MARKET OFF TO FAST START

Stocks Spurt on Demand for Steels, Motors, Rails and Specialties.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 5—Heavy demand for steel shares, rails and specialties gave the stock market a flying start today and prices on average reached the highest levels for nearly seven years.

Overholiday reports of further United Nations' gains on all major battle fronts whetted buying interest which embraced a wide variety of low priced motors and specialties, gold shares, coppers, agricultural equipments and industrial blue chips.

Top gains ranging from fractions to more than a point were chased a bit with a slackening of bidding near the fourth hour and with this came a considerable tapering in volume from the fast pace of the last hour which accounted for around 800,000 shares.

Bonds continued to move ahead and commodities were irregular.

The early advance was accelerated by a 5,000-share opening transaction in U. S. Steel at 62, up 1 point. Other pacemakers included Chrysler, Willys-Overland, Atlantic Coast Line Great Northern, Southern Pacific, American Smelting, Duluse Mines and Homestake. Low priced carriers were enlivened by big dealings in M-K-T and Baltimore & Ohio.

Plan Jobs For Blind Veterans

Sightless Civilians in War Jobs Prove Their Value to Industry.

BY JEANETTE SMITS
International News Service Correspondent

NEW YORK — Blind workers in war production are playing a pioneer role in the creation of a pattern for the postwar rehabilitation of disabled veterans and their placement in positions where they can be useful, productive, self-supporting members of society.

To meet manpower needs, many employers throughout the country have tapped the little-explored reservoir of sightless men and women — with astonishing results.

In All Lines of Work

Blind employes now are working in the aircraft industry, in shipyards, ammunition and small arms plants, ordnance, radio and automotive factories and precision tool companies. They operate lathes, drill presses, milling machines. They are laminating, assembling, buffing, packing. They are typists, stenographers and telephone operators.

And employers say they are morale-boosters wherever they work.

Many of these blind workers were trained at the Industrial Home for the Blind in Brooklyn, which employes 150 blind men and operates broom and mop factories. Recently, the workers enjoyed the distinction of being the first in their field to receive the Army-Navy "E".

Results in 110 Firms

While there are no general statistics available on the number of blind workers employed in war production, the National Society for the Blind has compiled some data on reports by manufacturers who have cooperated with institutions in all parts of the country in placing these persons.

A few months ago, the society reported on the results in 110 firms. Among them were major aircraft factories and arms manufacturers. All were unanimous in expressing satisfaction with the work turned out by their sightless employees. In addition to these blind workers in private industry, there are some 2,000 engaged in war production in workshops such as the factories maintained by the Industrial Home.

An outstanding example of a blind worker remarkable for skill, dexterity and speed is Miss Margaret Hynan, the only sightless girl of the 38 in the laminating department of Bendix Aircraft Corporation. She has set one the highest production records of her department during the 20 months of her employment there.

Makes Employers Proud

E. R. Squibb and Company take pride in the work of Ralph DiPalma. He was assigned to operate a nailing machine for the manufacture of wooden crates. Before his advent, the assembling of these crates required three workers, two men operating nailing machines and a girl placing cardboard inserts in the bottom and sides. Within a few days, DiPalma took over the task of inserting the cardboards as well as the operation of his machine, without any decline in production. The girl was released for other work.

One asset of blind workers which has been noted by employers is the fact that many of them are able to concentrate more intensively on their jobs than workers with unimpaired eyesight.

Saves Company Money

Occasionally this has sensational results, as in the case of a blind girl placed with A. Schraeder and Son. She was assigned to operate a drill press. Amid the clutter of the tool shop her sharp ears detected an unfamiliar sound from her machine. She called the foreman's attention to it. He detected a slight defect in the machine, and by remedying it was able to avoid waste of material due to imperfections.

The blind have provided many proofs of the here-to-fore unrealized facts that they can be utilized in many types of work for which they were previously considered ineligible. Champions of blind workers point out that this will be an all important factor when industry approaches its "inevitable task of absorbing the war-blinded." It holds, they say, a new approach to the problem which following previous wars has been dealt with on the basis of charity —public or private.

Nazis Munitions Ship Explodes in Denmark

By The Associated Press

COPENHAGEN, July 5 — The Free Danish press service Agency of London said a German munitions ship exploded yesterday causing damage estimated at close to $3,000,000.

Four persons were killed and 50 persons injured by the blast which damaged property 1,000 feet in all directions for several city blocks and set fire to several other vessels in the harbor.

Earlier the news agency had reported a fire and several explosions on a German ship, a Danish general strike and disturbances which forced concessions from German occupation authorities.

NEW PILOT TAKES TOP ACE LAURELS

By The Associated Press

A U. S. EIGHTH AIR FORCE FIGHTER BASE IN BRITAIN, July 5—Lt. Col. Francis Gabreski of Oil City, Pa., became the top ranking U. S. army air force fighter pilot today by shooting down his 28th plane over French France.

The latest victory for the Pennsylvania oil town came as he drew a blank yesterday when his flight failed to sight a German plane.

Two other American fighter pilots, Maj. Robert S. Johnson of Larkin, Okla., and Maj. Richard I. Bong of Poplar, Wis., have shot down 27 enemy planes apiece (Gabreski's 28th plane was a Messerschmitt-109).

He previously had made up his mind to shoot down 28 German planes before accepting a 30-day leave so return to the United States to marry Kay Cochran of Grand Rapids, Mich., whom he met in the Hawaiian Islands three years ago.

Gabreski, 25, abandoned a pre-medical course at Notre Dame university to sign up as an air cadet in 1940. The rest of his family is equally air minded.

"One of my brothers, Thaddeus, is a major in the medical corps in India," Gabreski said. "Bernice, my sister is in the nurse cadet corps at Erie, Pa. Max, he's my other brother, is in a Navy boot camp I think. Lottie, my other sister, is helping dad in the store back home."

PRESIDENT STANDS BY PRE-MEDIC RULE

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 5—President Roosevelt declined today to interfere with a selective service order banning occupational draft deferments for pre-medical students after July 1.

"No one is more keenly conscious than I am of the need of maintaining the health of the nation and of making sure that we have an adequate supply of doctors," the President wrote Rep. Miller (R-Neb), "but in this war the need of the armed forces for young, vigorous men must also be given thorough consideration."

Miller wrote the President asking him to review the order withholding deferments for pre-medical students. The President said the inter-agency committee on deferments—a group of government officials set up some months ago to study essential occupations—concluded that present-day medical students would not be available to practice medicine before 1948 and "many of them would never practice medicine."

The committee also gave attention, the President said, to the fact that young men and women who do not meet military physical standards are available to become pre-medical students.

LOVE'S FAIR HORIZON

By ADELE GARRISON

I KNEW better than to ask any question of Lillian concerning her husband's warning until we were in my room with the door closed. Then I firmly took the box from her hands, tossed it on my bed, and taking her by the shoulders, gently but firmly put her into a chair and drew another up opposite her.

"Now," I said militantly, when I had seated myself and was looking directly into her eyes, "what did Harry mean? You might as well tell me, for I shall get it out of him if I don't get it out of you. Has your heart been acting up again?"

"Not the heart," she replied hesitantly, "but——"

"But what?" I queried inexorably.

Blood-Pressure Soaring

"Well, if you must know," she confessed, "my blood pressure has been doing several ascension acts during the last few months. It's a lot better now, however. But you know, Harry."

"Thank Heaven for Harry," I said fervently, my thoughts flying back to the dread month following the rescue of Lillian's idolized daughter, Marion Morton, from the gang of international bandits holding her prisoner. The reaction from those weeks of torturing doubt had been a long and serious illness, with both the revival of a dormant heart ailment and a persistently high blood pressure giving all who loved her cause for alarm. But she had conquered her physical ailments, as she does all other emergencies, by her indomitable will and the strict obedience to medical orders which is characteristic of her when she is seriously ill.

Her convalescence, however, was another matter. No old saw was ever more aptly illustrated than Lillian's epitome of "When the devil was sick, the devil a monk would be; when the devil was well, the devil a monk was he."

Quizzical Expression

I flung the quotation at her half angrily as she looked up at me with the quizzical expression which I know so well.

"I suppose so," she admitted. "But I really have been in good shape for a long time before the present little flurries."

"Overworking as usual!" I accused her sternly.

She gave me a quick, searching look.

"Aren't we all?" she countered; "that is, any of us who are worth the powder to blow us up? This isn't exactly a rest cure we're living in today, you know."

"I do know," I retorted, "but it strikes me that you'd be of a great deal more use to your country alive than dead or the victim of a stroke."

A quick shudder ran over her, and the eyes that she raised to mine were tortured.

Speaks Sharply

"Don't dwell on that angle," she said sharply. "It haunts me enough as it is. To die is an adventure, I think I'd like to see what's on the other side of the curtain. But to live helpless, taxing to the utmost the affection and patience of those you love—why do you suppose I'm so meek when Harry issues his little ultimatums? You never knew me in a Patient Griselda role before, did you?"

"Not that I remember," I told her, "but if you've had that fear on you, why have you been rushing things so ever since your recovery? You needn't protest. I know part of what you've been doing, and can guess the rest."

"I fancy I have been going it a bit," she said, "but I thought I had the thing licked. It isn't all overwork that's stepped up the pressure gadget, though. I'd be better off, I think, if they'd let me work more. 'The thing I needs leastest,' "—she gave me the travesty of a smile—"is time on my hands. But let's not waste any more of that precious commodity on my affairs. You have a costume to try on, and if I'm not mistaken we'll have to set up an alteration shop right here."

"Right you are," I said promptly, going over to the bed and retrieving the box. But even as I untied the cord and lifted the elaborate mourning costume from its wrappings, her words: "I'd be better off if they'd let me work more," were caroming around my brain. I knew that in them lay the answer to what was behind her illness; that excessive worry of some sort, not overwork, was to blame.

But I also knew that I must not ask her what was troubling her. She has effectually closed that door, and while I knew that she inevitably would open it sooner or later and give me her confidence, now was distinctly not "the accepted time."

So it was that I held up the mourning costume, with an air of being interested in nothing else, and asked:

"Do you think it will require much alteration for my wearing?"

* * *

THERE'S only one answer to that question," Lillian said. "Try the thing on, and you'd better be quick about it. Katie will be clawing at the atmosphere if we don't get down to the dining room pretty soon."

"I'll work swiftly," I promised her, draping the mourning dress over the nearest chair and going to the door and locking it. Then I took off the gown and slip I was wearing, while Lillian rose from her chair and gathering the dress up, poised it above me.

Slips Gown On

"Hold up your arms!" she ordered, and as I obeyed, she slipped the gown deftly over my head, brought it to my waist, and then let the folds drop to the length of the costume. I would have protested the exertion on her part, had I not realized that exciting her, annoying her, would be more harmful than the fatigue she might incur.

"It's all right as to length," she said judicially. "You'll be wearing the white wig, I gather?"

I nodded, and she looked again at the gown from top to bottom.

"You'll be an old woman," she said. "The gown's a bit longer for you than for me, but it will be all right. The shoulders, too, will pass. But the sleeves are too long, and the body of the thing is too big for you. Stand still and let me take a jab or two at it."

She came close to me, turned the sleeves back at the wrists.

"We can run a bit of a hem in each," she said. "Where are your pins? I'll do it right now."

"Behind you, in that blue box on my dresser," I told her, and in another minute she was setting the pins in the required places.

Knows What's Wrong

"I can't sew a straight seam to save my life," she said when she had finished with the sleeves, "but I can tell what's wrong with the coronation robe of a queen."

She was speaking only the truth, as I well knew. She distinctly is not a needlewoman, but she has a modiste's sense of design and beauty. I have meekly followed her bidding in more than one sartorial adventure, and risen triumphant in something which almost deserved the term "creation."

"Now don't move a muscle!" she cautioned. "Hold your arms straight out in front of you! Don't raise them the fraction of an inch. I'll see just how much has to be taken in on each side from the inside of the shoulder to the waist. Luckily, it's a full skirt."

She set pins deftly along the seams of either side of the gown. Then she stood back and surveyed her work.

"The rest will be up to you," she said, "I wouldn't dare touch it. Go and look at it in the mirror, and tell me what you think."

I gave one look at a cleverly refitted garment, then turned to her enthusiastically.

"It's perfect!" I exclaimed. "And there will be very little work to do on it, just a couple of seams to run up and those sleeves to hem."

"And for the sake of the minor prophets, do curb your yen for meticulous needlework!" she adjured me. "I suppose you're doning it for the cozening of some species of rat, but he probably won't be measuring the stitches."

"No, I don't think they'll have time for that," I said.

"They!" she repeated quickly, then caught back the question. "Don't pay any attention to my curiosity," she said. "As I told you, I'll wait until Harry can hear the dope, too. You probably can spoon the pearls as a sort of side dish at the supper table. Let me get that dress off you first. Put your arms up, and I'll wriggle this off carefully. I'm pretty sure I've pinned it securely so you won't get scratched or caught, but just hold your breath till it's over your head."

Not Afraid

"I'm not afraid," I told her truthfully, stooping so that she could get a good purchase on the gown. In another half minute I was out of it, and getting into my own dress again while Lillian carefully laid the dress wrong side out, ready for sewing, over a chair.

"Not a hair turned," Lillian commented, looking at me approvingly when I had finished fastening my gown. "Come on! Let's go! I don't mind telling you that I'm starved."

"I could do with some food myself," I rejoined, as we went out of the door, meeting a palpably outraged Katie on the stairs.

"Vot I do?" she demanded of me. "Meester Underwood he say feed heem und keeds first, und I start dem mit dere soop, but eef I fix scrambled eggs now for five, und you no coom down qveeck, part of eet no good und—"

"We're coming now," I said. "Start your eggs, and I'll have the boys bring in our soup."

She turned and marched down the stairs, mumbling under her breath as she does when her routine is disturbed, and we went on into the dining room where Harry and the boys sprang to their feet and put us into our chairs. Katie, disdaining my suggestion about the boys serving us, had our hot soup on the table as soon as we were seated, and when we had finished, Lillian looked over at me quizzically.

"Next course, please. Start serving us the low down."
